

The Little Mermaid's Daughter

In a very distant kingdom, in the middle of nowhere, there was a princess named Sofia. She had dark brown hair and green eyes. She lived with her parents, James and Amber, she had a dog, Sebastian and a butler, Augusto but they called him Gus-gus. Sofia really liked going to the seashore and soaking her feet while looking at the horizon.

One day, while she was watching the sea, she saw something strange in the water, but she couldn't quite see what it was, so she decided to get in a canoe and see it more closely. When she approached the tide had already carried it away.

When she returned home she saw that one of the cooks was preparing some caramel apples, but the strange thing was that she couldn't recognize her, even though she went to the kitchen every day in search of her lunch. She looked very shy and distant, she didn't seem very interested in assisting the princess.

This lady kindly offered her an apple, Sofia couldn't resist since she was very hungry and it looked very tasty, so she took it, inspected it to see if it was crushed, but surprisingly it was in perfect condition. Next act, she brought it to her mouth. After a while, Sofia began to feel very tired, so much that she went to bed without having dinner.

After 2 days, Sofia woke up with a headache. -She felt strange, as if something in her had changed, she finally decided to take a shower, since that always made her feel better ... When she entered the bathroom, she turned on the tap that gave off hot water, and when she touched it to check its temperature, she began to feel dizzy, so much that she fell onto the floor. When she wanted to get up, to tell her parents what had happened, she realized that she could not, because her legs were gone, in their place was a tail, similar to that of mermaids.
